

China Center 美中国际司法研究中心

The Department of Criminal Justice and Criminology is the home of the Center for Justice Studies in China. The Center is a collaborative project between UNC Charlotte and Southwest University of Political Science and Law, (SWUPL) Chongqing, China. <http://www.swupl.edu.cn/english/index.htm>

A Center goal is to facilitate the exchange of scientific information and expertise between research scholars, academicians and practitioners relating to all aspects of justice issues – civil, criminal and social. It is designed to focus on long and short-term training and education experiences on both campuses.

The Center at UNC Charlotte is linked to the Center in Chongqing by a Board of Directors established in China according to Chinese requirements. Paul C. Friday <http://criminaljustice.uncc.edu/faculty/83-friday-paul-c.html> is Chairman of the Board and Director of the UNC Charlotte Center. He is also a Professor in the School of Law, SWUPL. Jiahong Liu, Dean of the School of Law (SWUPL) <http://www.swupl.edu.cn/english/index.htm> is Director of the Center in Chongqing and Professor of Criminal Justice at UNC Charlotte. The Center is linked to better enable and facilitate joint faculty research and student/faculty exchanges.

Center faculty are from a variety of campus departments outside of Criminal Justice and include Communications, Economics, English, Foreign Languages, History, International Studies, Political Science, Public Administration and Sociology. Faculty members from Charlotte School of Law <http://www.charlottelaw.org/> are also participants in the Center.

The Center will hold its Inaugural International Conference On Drug Issues And Control in Chongqing, China March 24-28, 2010.
